Advanced Certificate course in Jungian Sand Therapy

Aimed at qualified and near qualified therapists, this highly praised advanced course delivers all the skills required to become an accomplished Jungian Sand Therapist.

Combined with the required number of practice and supervision hours, it qualifies successful participants for full accreditation with the Association for Jungian Sand Therapy in Ireland.

The course is delivered on a group and one-to-one basis over a 12-month period beginning with a group Introduction and Orientation module in September 2022.

Learning is via sandplay sessions alternated with theory and supervision sessions. Comprehensive course notes are also provided.

Participants must complete 15 personal sand trays over the period of the course and facilitate the same number with a single client. The latter form the basis for a required full case history presentation towards the end of the term.

The course is mainly experiential but there are some written assignments along with a comprehensive structured reading programme that explores the work of, amongst others, Margaret Lowenfeld, Dora Kalff and Carl Jung.

The Lynnbrook Centre is Ireland's leading provider of training courses in Jungian Sand Therapy. It has delivered introductory and advanced courses in the discipline for the past decade to therapists from all over the island of Ireland.

The centre has a highly regarded reputation for providing its trainees and graduates with superior levels of tuition, supervision and support both during and after training.

COURSE REVIEWS

What previous participants have said about this course:

What did you find most useful?

I found the whole course useful from the first day to the last. Each day was filled with new knowledge.

Thank you for your generosity and professionalism, it was a great experience being on the course.

Most useful was the safe learning space, the location and group size for trust and depth. Also the balance of experiential and theory...

The freedom of the 15 sand trays, which allowed me to learn about self and others... and Jean's patient presence which held me throughout.

Other comments

Thank you, Jean, for your skill, patience, information but, mostly, your presence.

The whole experience and process was very powerful and yet gentle. I know I have grown and changed for the better since I started the course...

I found Jean very encouraging, understanding and a very gentle tutor. I am so glad I found sand therapy; it has helped me become who I am meant to be.

Thank you for a rich learning experience.

Sandplay therapy can establish an inner peace which contains the potential for development of the total personality, including its intellectual and spiritual aspects...It is the role of the therapist to perceive these powers and, like the guardian of a precious treasure, protect them in their development.

Please note

As Covid-19 restricted the number of places we could offer on the previous course, there is high demand for places on the 2022/23 course and we expect to fill all placements long before the closing date. We therefore recommend you book early, as places are allocated strictly in the order of bookings received.

In the event of a postponement of the start date due to Covid-19, participants will be offered a full refund of their deposit if the new date doesn't suit them.
